The Wheat Crop Better Than Last Year. Monday the Last County Court in Lunenburg Before the Primary-Mr. Barksdale Accounted for.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)
MEHERRIN, VA., July 10.—Work has commenced on the tramway of The Lunenburg Lumber Company, of which Messrs. Miller and Miller, of Richmond, are the chief promoters. A corps of sur-veyors arrived Tuesday last and immedi-ately set to work running the line. As soon as this is completed a large force of hands will be put to work and the new line constructed as fast as possible. The road will be run from about the 53d mile-post, 2½ miles north of this place, southeast, passing Nutmust and hence on leaving Lunenburg county sev-eral miles to the right, and end near Mount Carwell Church.

Mount Carwell Church:

Large options have been secured through this section by this company. This is the first attempt by any concern to get out the vast amount of lumber that like with the control of ber that lies within the borders of "the old Free State." A sidetrack sufficient to accommodate the company will be put in where the line joins the Southern. and everything connected with the enterprise will be fully up-to-date.

GOOD WHEAT.

The wheat crop in this section, although short, is much better than it was thought to be. Most of the crop has been threshed and the yield in many cases is much better than last year.
Other crops are suffering to some extent for rain as none has fallen here for over ten days. Irish potatoes are plentiful and the outlook for a good crop here is very promising.

Monday next is Lunenburg court day, and this being the last session that will be held before the primary it is expected that both Messrs. Southall and Lessiter will be on hand. Eoth candidates are popular in this community and it is thought a close run will be made. NOT LOST

A Valuable Addition to the Baptist Orpharage at Salem

(Special Dispatch to The Times.) SALEM, VA., July 10.—The completion of the handsome new executive building at the Baptist Orphanage of Virginia, and its delivery to the trustees by the con-tractors here yesterday was an occasion of much pleasure to the Baptists of the State.

About twelve hundred people came to Salem to inspect the new building and congratulate Superintendent George J. Hobday on this valuable addition to the orphanage property.

The new executive building forms the center of the group of eight handsome building which compress the Banjist Or-buildings which compose the Baptist Or-phanage of Virginia, and is much larger than the others. It was built entirely of brick, at a cost of $25,000, and is five stories high, with a tower ninety feet

In it are contained the superintendent's suite of rooms, reception rooms chapel, assembly hall, museum, library, class rooms, and a dining room seating 500 children. The building is equipped throughout with every modern convenience.

This institution may well be a source of pride to the Baptists of Virginia. There are now 182 orphans there, and all are being tausht some useful occupation.

Meeting of the Association—Reports and Addresses.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)

KING WILLIAM COURTHOUSE, VA., July 10.—The King William Ladies' Confederate Memorial Association met here Tuesday. There was a fine gathering of the citizens of the county, and the features of the meeting were a big dinner, after which reports of the progress of the association in raising funds for the erection of a monument were read, followed by patriotic and entertaining speeches by Mr. H. I. Lewis, Commonwealth's attorney; Representative T. H. Edwards and Congressman John Lamb. The association was organized a year ago for the purpose of erecting a monument on the Courthouse green in memory of the sons of King William who went to the front in 1861-65. The association has in its treasury over $600, and the crection of a handsome monument to cost about $1,000 is now assured.

The meeting of old Confederates and the gathering of the people from all sections of the county was exceedingly pleasant and greatly enjoyed. The ladies were present in large numbers and fully determined to carry to a successful completion what they have so nobly begun. King William will soon have a handsome monument to her Confederate soldiers, and the following committee was appointed to proceed to business: Misses Emma Healy, Mary Gary, Anna Gwathmey, Josephine Sizer, Mrs. A. C. Gravatt; Messrs, William M. Gary, J. T. Edwards and George H. Burke.

The meeting adjourned subject to the call of Mrs. T. D. Moncure, the president, and another will be held as soon as the above-mentioned committee is ready to resort.

The improvements which have the progress of the cotton seed the progress of the cotton seed classific industry are somewhat akin to those in other undertakings which are changing the South and Southwest from a largely agricultural section to one of increasing importance in mining and manufacturing. fen Company are on in earnest, and with three more the engagement of the popular organization will be over, with many regrets of the public that it should be so suddenly terminated. Manager Giffen could not have chosen a more appropriate play for the farewell than "The Wife." Not that it is itself sorrowful, far from it, for the comedy largely overshadows the seriousness, but because every member of the company is placed in a role that has some depth to it and gives the actor a chance to bid farewell to friends in a character that he or she is so clever as to leave a lingering remembrance of the season that has been filled with much pleasure and entertainment for audience and actor alike.

The members of the Giffen Company are all clever people, and last night seemed more so than ever. Each artist was given a hearty hand of applause on their first appearance, and the finales were liberally encored.

As a matter of record the cast is here No better illustration of this, perhaps, is to be had than the evolution of methods in the Joplin zinc and lead field. A special correspondent of the Manufacturers' Record, who is covering developments in the Southwest, points out that only glout four per cent. of the 700 square miles of that Southwestern district is under development, and he says:

"More complete machinery and deeper mining is now the rule. There was a time when a man and a mule were about all that were required in the way of equipment for mining, and then a fifty-foot mine was 'deep.' Now the windlass has given place to the steam hoist in nas given place to the band ligger to a reacentrating plant capable of handling 100 tons of ore a day, while a shaft will often be sunk to a depth of 200 or 250 appearance, and the finales were liberally encored.

As a matter of record the cast is here appended. The name of Mr. Chagnon does not appear, but the audiences that have seen his acting in other performances know it is of true metal and that he has done conscientious work, such as makes the star. Mr. Jennings' name is also missing, but it would have appeared had not the clever character actor seen fit to sever his connection with the company rather than suffer the professional indicative of taking a small part in "The Christian" after having been seen earlier in the season more prominently in the cast. Mr. Jennings has many friends here, and they will welcome his appearance as a member of the Fawcett Company at the Bijou next season. The cast follows: feet. Indications are that even deeper mining will be done in the future, for horings made throughout the district show a richer deposit of ore at 500 feet than at any other depth, while ore has than at any other depth, while ore has been encountered at a depth of more than 1.60 feet. It is of common occurrence for some one to come along after a 'gopher' has abandoned a disging, and by sinking a deep shaft in the same spot make a rich stilke. The extent of the district is constantly increasing, as development work proceeds. It is not at all certain that a much wider field than is now regarded as the proved territory will not be opened the proved territory will not be opened the proved territory will not be opened up, although it will take many years to anywhere near develop the field included in the present agreed limits. Recent development work has been made in the territory north of the former boundaries of the field, and good results have followed prespecting in the direction of the known fields of great richness, but present inaccessibility in northern Arkansas. It is restricting to the first three sources shifty, in northern Arkansas. It is a belief held by many that when the Indian Territory is open to prospecting there may be found an excellent zinc field in the district adjacent to Missouri. FINE FARMING LAND.

"Unlike the mining camps of the West, the land above the zine and lead of Southwest Missouri is good farming land. and it is not an uncommon experience to find a fine farm with growing crops, from beneath which great treasures of minerals are being taken. Furthermore, the district is on the edge of the great fruit region of Southwest Missouri and Northern Arkansas, where some of the Northern Arkansas, where some of the finest apples of the world are grown and where strawberries and other small fruits grow to such perfection and in such alundance that fruit express trains are run during the season to rush the precious product to the Northern markets. This Joplin section's in the famous Ozark psateau or uplift, and has an elevation of about 12,000 feet above the level of the sea. This gives it a climate of conspicuous salubrity and evenness of temperature, and the Jonlin people bras as much about the healthfulness of their location as they do of its presentation as the description.
